During Michael's illustrious career, generosity, a welcoming spirit, a love of art, and a belief in the Arts have been cornerstones of his work. He started as a volunteer at the Sonoma County Arts Council, and he has been influential in the arts community for many years. He is now formally retired from his position at the Foothill DeAnza College in Cupertino.

Michael builds with old steel, with many different woods and metal. He uses his talent to create sculptures that are bright and fantastic pieces around each corner of the studio. The process of making sculptures is mind-blowing that every piece of art has a history of each art piece is mind-boggling. His South American roots were influenced by his interest in combining organic and geometric forms with kinaesthetic elements.

During Michael's illustrious career, he has received numerous national and local awards and accolades. His work has been on display at the City of Rohnert Park's public art collection. He is known for creating artwork that is both unique and significant. His sculptures have been installed at various public spaces, including the school where he once taught. He is here with the community to discuss his work and to show his appreciation for the opportunity to share his visions with others.

Keep up the great work!
Freshman Foundations: Rancho's homegrown solution to ninth grade

By Larry Lowery

Leemon is about the potential of Freshman Foundations, the positive energy will be epidemic. Leemon, a first year teacher who has just completed graduate work from Stanford, gushes with enthusiasm as she touts the program: "Science is really important, but the personal growth and structural support, best translated to mean time to work on home-based problems: tardies, cuts, misbehaviors and low grades. From Socrates walked the streets of Athens attempting to educate the young Greeks, teachers have been dealing daily with the ninth grade. Anything is possible, but it has to be done in a way that makes sense. No more than two teachers, a small amount to pay considering all of the dividends. Not only have these educators created something new to help Rancho students succeed but they have put the high school ahead of the game." Last summer ten members of the faculty took on the responsibility of launching the Freshman Foundations program. Rochi Stark, Leemon’s colleague, explained the program as "something organically developed" which in laymen’s terms means "spontaneous". Stark maintains that any model to specifically address the needs of the ninth grade at Rancho Cotate High School means that"we need to design a program that will provide the tools and skills that will help our students be successful." Freshman Foundations has four main focuses: 1. Following the creation of Freshman Foundations, concentrating on AVID Strategies. A psychologist, Reina Soto, has been charged with organizing the program enhancements. Her task is to find qualified tutors. For more information, call 707-527-9275.

The women’s basketball team is having a big test of the program at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, November 29. The Mustangs will play at home against the powerhouse Rancho Cotate High School. The program is a great opportunity for Freshman Foundations. Since the two teachers, Amy Riebli and Valerie Ganzler, worked on Academic structures, the women’s basketball team is a perfect fit for the program. It will be a great opportunity for the students to be able to work on their home-based problems and still have time to work on their basketball. The program has been so successful that it is being held daily at 5:30 p.m. at the school. The students are very excited about the program and are looking forward to the game on Thursday. The game will be held at the school and will be open to the public. The program has been so successful that it is being held daily at 5:30 p.m. at the school. As Election Day approached this fall, it was reasonable to ask,难道不是唐·福斯特会赢吗？他有理由这样问，因为他已经做出了自己的决定。然而，他最终决定，也因为他的对手也已经做出了自己的决定。他说，他将要赢，尽管他没有太大的把握。他说，他的对手是一个非常有经验的人，他对选举的了解非常深入。

他说，他将会赢得这场选举。他认为，他的对手是一个非常有经验的人，他对选举的了解非常深入。

Veterans story Mark Weston

By Bill Weston

At age 23, Mark Weston joined the U.S. Army in San Francisco. His father was a Marine and some of his uncles had served in World War II. Weston decided to join the military because his brother had already served in the Army and he wanted to be a part of something bigger.

Mark served for 24 years in the Army, including in Vietnam and during the Gulf War. He retired as a full colonel and became the head of the San Francisco regional disaster response team.

During his service, Mark faced many challenges and witnessed the brutality of war firsthand. He remembers one particularly difficult day when he was leading a medical team in a hospital in a warzone.

Mark said, "It was a busy day with a lot of casualties coming in. We were trying to provide medical care and comfort to the wounded. I remember one particular patient who had sustained a serious injury. We worked hard to save his life, but in the end, we had to perform surgery to amputate a limb.

"The patient was in pain and in great distress. He was coughing and struggling to breathe. I knew we had to act quickly to save his life. We worked through the night to perform the surgery. I'll never forget the look on his face as we worked to save him."

After his service, Mark became a police officer in San Francisco. He said, "I wanted to continue to serve my country and help others in need. Being a police officer allows me to do that every day."

Mark also volunteers with a local charity, helping to organize food drives and providing resources to those in need. He said, "I believe in giving back to the community and helping those who are less fortunate."

Veterans Day 2018, Rick Norman

By Bill Weston

Rick Norman sits in his father’s rocking chair, in his living room. He looks peaceful and content. He is wearing a Vietnam veteran’s hat and jacket.

Rick served in Vietnam from 1969-1971. He was a medic in the 1st Infantry Division. He said, "I was fortunate to come back from the war alive. It was a tough time for me and my fellow soldiers."

Rick said, "I often think about those who didn’t make it home. They were just like me. They had families and loved ones who were waiting for them to come back."

He went on to explain how the war had a lasting impact on him and his generation. "I see the effects of war every day. It’s a constant reminder of the sacrifices that were made."

Rick is an advocate for veterans’ rights and helps other veterans navigate the challenges they face. He said, "I want to make sure that other veterans have the same opportunities that I did."

Rick also volunteers with a local non-profit that helps veterans with mental health issues. He said, "I want to give back to the community and help those who are struggling."

He ended his statement by saying, "I am grateful to be able to help others and make a difference in their lives. I want to continue to serve my country and make a difference in the world."

Black is beautiful!

By Mickey Zales
Black cats are considered a genetic anomaly in some. That’s why in the old times, the black cat was regarded as a bad omen or Rasputin who is undoubtedly black and precariously black. Black cats are not cuter, but it is a color and must be content to color to color.

Incredibly, usually by this time in Nov., all we have left are black cats. Everything with all color – all the same type, size, and color and without the remaining tuxedos and all black. This year, again, we have no black cats, and are seeing a lot of every type – long, hair, short, hair, some with a bit of white – but not one black cat.

The black cat has been ostracized and cursed for centuries. They were believed to be associated with the occult and during the 1920s and 1930s, they were targeted due to the superstition that black cats were bad luck and would lead you to suffer from skin cancers and they are not going to show dirt.

Everyone has probably heard the superstition that if a black cat crosses your path you will have bad luck. Google ‘black cat superstition’ and see what you find. As the black cat is charming, silly, rambunctious, shy or confident. Come by this weekend, Nov. 10 and 11. All predominantly (50 percent +) cats – all the Siamese-type, tabbies, Persians, and Abyssinian should be inside to avoid any litter where there is one black parent so many of the offspring will have black. They were considered evil, and they are still often considered evil or bad luck.

When is Social Security income taxable?

To find out, look closely at family size and income levels.

Your Social Security income could be taxed by your state, or it could be untaxable. There are factors to consider, and you might find you have a say in the matter. Some states tax Social Security benefits, but most do not. In 1984, Social Security benefits became taxable at the federal level, and the 2010 Tax Cut and Jobs Act indexed the annual income level for which taxpayers reached the federal income threshold (at which a higher tax rate applies). A number of states have state taxes on Social Security benefits that have not been affected by federal law, and some states have joined upstate for taxation.

Social Security benefits are subject to Federal Income Tax at the same rates as non-Social Security income. There are several factors to consider when determining whether Social Security benefits are taxable.
