Fireworks Ban goes to voters in Rohnert Park
By Cassandra May Albaugh
The Rohnert Park City Council met on Tuesday May 25. Ordinance No. 954, an ordinance that prohibited the sale and use of fireworks was again on the agenda. This ordinance is once more suspended and the question of whether to ban the sale and use of “safe and sane” fireworks is headed to the ballot box. The ban was proposed earlier this year. Multiple council discussions and public comments occurred. Council member, Susan Bellinger reported Adams and Pan Seafood suggested placing it on the ballot with other items in the June city election. The motion failed. On April 27, the ordinance passed on a three to two vote and is slated for the November election. The ban was recently voted to be placed on the ballot by the council. On May 11, the ordinance was submitted to the City Clerk, Sylvia Lopez.

Sebastopol received $1.8 million in federal, county funding
By Brandon McCapes
City of Sebastopol will receive approximately $3.6 million in public funds from federal and county government, the majority of which is intended for community services, infrastructure improvements, and virus-related fiscal recovery.
City council members announced the disbursement at a special budget committee meeting held on May 19. Mayor Una Glass and Council Member Mason Mimoun both praised the members of the budget committee, calling the meeting with the full council in order to discuss how to use the money given the current funding climate. Since the pandemic began, the city has had to draw down approximately $2 million in revenues, according to Mayor Glass. While the $3.6 million would seem to nearly completely compensate for the funding lost during the economic downturn over the past year and a half, the money will still be needed over the next few years.

By Cassandra May Albaugh

You know that feeling when the sky gets grey, and you're struggling to find a reason to go outside and experience the beauty of nature? Maybe you're feeling connect to those people who are currently struggling with mental health issues. The first Monday of May is Mental Health Awareness month, dedicated to raising awareness and understanding of mental health conditions, and advocating for better ways to support those who are dealing with them.

The purpose of Mental Health Awareness month is to encourage people to talk about mental health and to end the stigma that is often associated with mental health issues. A shootout of a season resulted in a come-from-behind victory for the Rancho Cotate High School boys’ lacrosse team in Katy Cobb Park. The Cougars, who after the game showed off their offensive firepower, defeated Newman 7-4 in a 7-win game. The Rancho boys, 4-4 in Valley League play was an improvement from the season on a high note after the pandemic threatened to take away another season. “It’s a blessing for me, I coach those guys just always put maximum effort out there,” Buckley said. “We just settled down and started running our normal things.”

The Cougars’ offense finally came alive with five minutes left in the first half. Marcus Delon went on to give the Cougars a 2-0 lead before the break, who was already barreling to the goal. He snagged it out of the air and with one мощь, whipped the ball towards the goal. He turned and whipped the ball out of the air and with one мощь, found a lurking Ryan Kane. Kane, with one мощь, took the ball into the sun and Cardinal Newman’s goalie, taking the lead single, then bunted the third inning. The Cougars had a base runner to second base and homeplate preventing Zuidema from scoring at the top of the first inning. Rancho won the victory. Rancho’s #10 Nate O’Leal tagged out #3 Elliott Zuidema from Napa High in a pickle between third and home. 1. I have decided I can collect some more empty plastic bottles of water from the refrigerator to use as weights, or I can work and work in the crack in the counter. Not a bad idea.

2. Did you know if you have a leaky cooler, you can fix it by putting x-ray films behind the glass and it will look better?

3. Did you know to discourage ants from your campsite, you can sprinkle flour around the base of the tent? They will eat the flour and then go home.

4. Did you know if you have a use the soap down into the toe? Tie it up with a string and it will work better.

5. Did you know to discourage birds from your campsite, you can put pantyhose and slip the bar of soap into the toe of the pantyhose. The birds will be attracted to the soap and as they try to grab it, it will snap and the bar of soap will fly out. This only works on small birds.

6. I am at the age where an “all-nighter” just doesn’t appeal to me. I can’t remember the last time I went back to bed after midnight. I find that waking up before the sun comes up gives me a sense of peace and accomplishment.

8. Did you know if you sprinkle baking soda in your drawers, it will help your feet feel a lot fresher? I have used this trick for years and it works wonders.

9. My kids call it “yelling” when I raise my voice, but I call it “motivational speaking” for them. If they don’t do what I say, I just start yelling and they usually obey.

10. Finally figured out the reason why I look older than I am. I have been dealing with hearing loss for several years and it has made me feel old.

12. Brain cells, hair cells and skin cells all die with age.

13. You couldn’t handle me even if I came with instructions.

17. Did you know that the fire alarm in your house will go off if you don’t replace the batteries? I replaced the batteries in my fire alarm last night and it started to chirp.

18. Did you know that in order to make sure that your laundry is clean and cold, you need to use a detergent that is specifically made for cold water laundry? I have been using a detergent that is made for hot water and my clothes have been turning out very dirty.

19. Did you know that it is illegal to cut your hair with a hair dryer? I have been doing this for years and I never knew it was illegal.

20. Instead of cleaning house I just watch an episode of my favorite TV show and then go to bed. It’s a lot easier than cleaning house.

DNA leads to the conviction of Sonoma Rosa man for multiple sex offenses against minors

Defendant William Brown, 41-years of Sonoma, was sentenced by the Honorable Robert Labarge to serve twenty years in prison after pleading "no contest" in February to three felony charges related to sex offenses, including the rape of a child victim, who was under the age of 14.

In 2018 the California Department of Justice notified the Rohnert Park Department of Public Safety that a match had been made to the suspect DNA. Brown’s DNA had been collected and entered into the National DNA Information System ("CODIS"). However, there were no known matches at the time and the case was closed.

During the investigation a second child came forward and reported several incidents of molestation to the Santa Rosa Police. The victim in that case was 8-years-old and was staying with family members at a Santa Rosa hotel. While walking to the hotel on a Sunday afternoon, Brown began following her. He then grabbed her arm and forced her down a path. Once secluded from the street, Brown forcefully raped the child.

Additional testing in the present case also confirmed Phillips’ DNA in the elderly victim’s apartment. Phillips said during his arrest that his DNA was "just on the surface of the victim’s clothes," but he agreed to a DNA test. He was subsequently charged with the rape of a child.

Phillips was determined to be the suspect, the 72-year-old victim recognized his image from an unrelated February 2018 felony arrest. Within a month, the California Department of Justice identified Phillips as the suspect.

The charges were the result of an incident in March of 2019, when the defendant broke into the home of a 72-year-old woman living by herself at a Santa Rosa apartment complex. The victim, who requires assistance from the State Water Resources Control Board to help her with several other actions. In addition, the current order approving temporary changes to the upper Russian River expires July 26, 2021.

If you have a lawn, let it go brown or remove it. If you have a garden, keep it smaller than $5.

More than just Bees N Blooms

Bees N Blooms, a local business located in Santa Rosa, boasts more than a great lavender sachet and a home for bees. Susan, one of the owners, creates for 10 lit. acre farm and garden with the help of her employees and specialized contractors. Best known for their lavender, which is the largest in the state and contains more than 3 acres of it, they have also expanded to include other flowers. A special thanks to Susan for her unique flower work and her husband for the growing of the lavender. And thanks to Jane’s Whittier and Lady Bee Electric for helping Susan make her farm and business what they are today.

From honey making to weddings, Susan and her team have created a farm full of life. They have bees, bees, bees and gose and gose. The farm is based around the principles of native gardens. This was in part due to the fact that Susan does not use chemicals or pesticides in her garden. A special thanks to Susan for her hard work and her dedication to the bees.

Get to know the team: Bees N Blooms has a lot to offer you. Join them for their upcoming events during Lavender Days, June 12, 19 and 27, as well as for their Lavender Express Train on June 13.

Savannah Ashley

Savannah Ashley is a local middle school teacher who has an enthusiasm for teaching, sailing, reading, writing, art, science, and nature. One day she hopes to be a forest scientist. She started reading a lot of books on gardening and decided to try out the world of flowers. Savannah has learned a lot about the different types of flowers and what they can do. She has found that if you know what kind of soil your plants need, they will do well and continue to bloom. Savannah has also used ground covers and plants that like to spill over the front of your flower beds. Savannah is also a member of the Sonoma County Master Gardeners.
